Welcome to the Beginning of Your Journey!

By Donald Cherry

Hello everyone. Welcome to Hiroshima International University. I came here 17 years ago, and I have been very happy working with the excellent teachers and students at this university. I am originally from the United States, but I have been in Japan for about 30 years. I have lived in Osaka, Takasaki (Gunma Prefecture), Kanazawa, and now Hiroshima. I am very happy here in Hiroshima, and have enjoyed exploring the area – the mountains, the Inland Sea and its islands, and the many exciting sites in Hiroshima City. I am sure you will enjoy your time here. I encourage you to take advantage of all the university and the area has to offer. There is a lot to see and do.

I teach the freshman courses English Communication and English Reading. My style of teaching is probably very different than the style of teaching you have experienced before. I advise you to come to my class with fresh eyes and an open mind. I will do my best to challenge you in different and interesting ways. I am also an advisor once a week for an English-only conversation lunch hour called English House.

I find learning foreign languages to be fascinating. I am not such a great Japanese speaker, but I do enjoy studying, speaking, and writing Japanese. I find it fascinating that there can be such a wide variety of languages on this earth. I find it truly incredible that human beings could invent so many different ways to speak and write. I have briefly studied Chinese, French, Spanish, Korean, and Hindi. One aspect I find especially interesting among these languages is how different the pronunciation of each one is. I also enjoy learning the different writing systems among these languages.

My other interests are cycling, hiking, and writing. I have cycled and hiked a lot in the mountains around Hiroshima Prefecture, as well as on the islands in the Inland Sea. I also like writing, and I have written and published poetry, fiction, and essays both in Japan and the United States.

Again, welcome to Hiroshima International University. I believe this will be the first step in a wonderful journey of exploration!
